ican State executive committee. Mr. McNeil interviewed Mr. Ricketts and was informed that President Roosevelt had given instructions that Negroes should in no case be discriminated against on account of color, and that Mr. Martin would have to work right where he was. When Martin returned to the side of the Negro, the foreman came within hearing of the men and remarked that the Negro was as good as any of them, and if any of them, and if anybody did not like the position he could leave. There was, said the foreman, a supply of resignation blanks always on hand in his desk. The Negroes of the department are immensely pleased over the outcome of the affair.—Colo. Statesman.
